members and Team Je Player // This jumps to the player's section if the object is on the player's team. Use the "JE" command to go to the section of your comparison command. 3 Select the instruction and click Show Dismantler. 14 Create a comparison code below "Newmem". If you are looking for a data structure, the registry will be a number of displacement or a letter list on the left. Usually, it will go straight to the original code that has a label (code) or (original code). For example, "Rotter (Player)" or "Rotter (enemy)". Select "4 bytes" as the data type and assign a displacement number value that is not used. Use the "CMP" command to create a code line that compares the value of the different objects in the registry or the plus the scroll number. This will display the instruction that accesses this address in the list of Addresses accessed. 12 Create a new section for the covered Raplo. Use the following steps to detect the address list data structure: Click the right mouse button on the selected addresses. Then add a code line that jumps to the output if it is an ally. Then you will need to add a line that jumps to the skirt, original code, return code. It is the instruction that is highlighted when you open the debugger. This will cause if the player or an ally is attacked (or firing weapons using consumables, etc.), nothing will change, but if an enemy is attacked, the code will be performed normally. To inject scripts to different objects, you need to know some assembly code. 15 Add a code line that jumps to the section of the object you want to change. Click Automatic Meter. Runs the code you entered. JMP OriginalCode // Jump to the original code if the object is an enemy team. One way to simplify things is not adding new rigs, under Template on the menu bar at the top. The 3 are listed at the top of the 3 injection model.
